

Experienced Professionals

The TESCO Project Manager is a client's one-stop contact from project conception to successful completion.

Systems integration projects, by their nature, require the coordination of multiple technical team members and project stakeholders. The primary function of project management is to achieve all project goals and objectives while honoring the preconceived project constraints—including scope, resources, time schedule and budget.

TESCO employs a knowledgeable staff of project managers, many of whom are accredited Project Management Professionals* (PMP), experienced with coordinating complex systems integration projects specifically for water/wastewater utilities, transportation projects and renewable energy solutions. Employing PMP-accredited project managers ensures the disciplines of planning, organizing and managing resources while addressing the successful completion of project-specific goals and objectives.

Project managers coordinate TESCO's scope of work, as well as become involved with the overall project collaboration: coordinating with the owner, consultant, general contractor, subcontractors, internal team members, and other vendor/system suppliers to ensure the requirements for project integration are met.

Documented Approach

As part of the TESCO's Quality Plan, we have created a consistent, systematic approach to managing projects, using documented procedures in our Project Management Manual. This manual is based on rigorous standards required by the Project Management Institute (PMI) and the Control System Integrators Association (CSIA).

TESCO incorporates modern project management tools, (Microsoft Project, SharePoint sites, OneNote) to ensure every detail of a project is recorded and addressed.

Our Process:

- » Provide project schedule (timelines) with project milestones
- » Manage contractual obligations
- » Oversee entire project to ensure related deadlines are met
- » Perform site visits throughout the project
- » Attend required project meetings

*"PMP" and the PMP logo are certification marks of the Project Management Institute, Inc. which are registered in the United States and other nations. Project Management Institute's PMP credential, which is ISO 9001:2000 compliant, connotes the holder as one who has demonstrated the knowledge, experience and leadership skills required to competently practice project management. It is the profession's most globally recognized and respected credential in the field of Project Management. PMP education and certification provide project managers with a solid foundation for delivering projects on-time and under budget.

TESCO is a recognized Level One CSIA-Certified Systems Integrator, having passed a rigorous third party audit every three years given by the Control System Integrators Association.
